

Will you help Tryke?

Tryke was picked up with another dog in Northern New Jersey. Their owner came back and claimed the other dog but left Tryke because he is a senior guy and had a serious injury leaving him with a very bad limp. He was dehydrated, malnourished and hopping around on his damaged hip.

The northern NJ shelter is probably one of the worst shelters to be left in. He was in immediate danger of euthanasia.

So Macspro rallied, and with help from Shar Pei lovers in New Jersey, Maryland and North Carolina, Tryke was taken immediately to a vet in Northern NJ, given good food and fluids. Blood work was performed and he was updated on all shots needed. This poor neglected Pei was then transported to his foster mom in North Carolina.

Under foster mom's care, Tryke has rallied. He is gaining weight and feeling better. But his limp is so severe that foster mom took him to her vet. X-rays were performed and it was determined that the ball of the hip is totally out of place. It is very painful.

You would never know though! He is a very happy boy, enjoying the attention, food and love he is finally getting.

But Macspro needs your help!

Surgery estimates are over $800 to correct his hip so he can walk normally and live pain free. Won't you help us help Tryke? Help him live the rest of his life in warmth and comfort?
